Little Library adds stocking stuffers

PORT CLINTON - Kimberly Leneghan and a mini club she formed at Immaculate Conception School set up a Mini Free Library in front of the building on Fourth Street.

The library is a typical take a book, give a book philosophy. But during the holidays, the Free Little Library will take a spirited twist.

The ICS students have been collecting stocking stuffers for several weeks. A crew of students wrapped all the stocking stuffers in hopes that someone's Christmas will be just a little more jolly.

These stocking stuffers will be placed in the school's Free Little Library from Dec. 16 through Christmas. The school wants the community to know that the items are there for people in need to stop and take.

The little free library sits directly in front of the school doors at 109 W. Fourth St.

ICS will begin enrollment for the 2020-2021 school year right after the holidays. Call the school at 419-734-3315 for details.

Celebrate Sandusky County's 200th birthday

FREMONT – The Rutherford B. Hayes Presidential Library and Museums has invited the public to come to "Let's Celebrate Sandusky County's 200th Birthday."

This exhibit opening reception will be at Hayes at 2 p.m. Dec. 15, with remarks from the students at 2:15 p.m.

This exhibit will highlight the history of Sandusky County through the use of photos on two walls and will also use a timeline to share different historical points in history. Dozens of historic images artfully arranged in a photo collage tell the history of Sandusky County in visual form. This floor-to-ceiling mural will occupy two walls in the local history section of the Hayes Museum.

This project is a collaboration with Rutherford B. Hayes Presidential Library and Museums and a group of students from Heidelberg University in Tiffin. These students are putting together this project for their final as a part of their public history course, taught by Christie Weininger, Hayes Presidential executive director.

The exhibit opening is included with regular admission. Hayes Presidential members are admitted for free. Admission for Heidelberg University students is free with a valid Heidelberg University identification.

For details, call 419-577-9073 or email pderr@heidelberg.edu.

Downtown PC celebrates Community Christmas

PORT CLINTON - Downtown Port Clinton had 11 businesses compete for best tasting chili during the annual Community Christmas on Dec. 7. Many business also hosted other activities.

Winners in the fifth annual Chili Tasting Contest were Lily and Gerts for crowd's favorite, followed by Northern Exposure and Lakelynn Design.

Children and families were able to visit with Santa and Mrs. Claus at the Clinton House.

The sixth annual window decorating contest winners were: first, Ohler and Holzauer; second, Erie Shore Chiropractic/Dr. Kevin Francis; and third, Unique. This year's People Choice award went to Ohler and Holzauer.

The day finished up with the annual lighted Christmas parade and tree-lighting ceremony at Adams Street Park. This year, Coffee Express took home the first place plaque for the parade, followed by The Port Clinton Fire Department, second; and the City of Port Clinton, third.

Main Street PC presents check to Polter Real Estate

PORT CLINTON - The board of directors for Main Street Port Clinton announced that MSPC has awarded Jaime and Steve Polter, owners of Polter Real Estate, a $4,600 grant to purchase new windows and a door for the front of their building, 130 Madison St., as part of its Downtown Improvement Grant Program.
