STUDENTS OF THE MONTH

FREMONT SCHOOLS

The following sixth-graders were honored during the month of April:

Atkinson Elementary: Robert Joerg, son of Melissa and Jeff Joerg, is a student in Mr. Steinmetz's class. Robert is on student council and safety patrol. He is a peer mediator and plays drums in the school band. Studying and reading about history as well as geography are favorite hobbies of Robert. Robert is an excellent student and a positive role model to his peers, according to his nomination form. He is always willing to help others. Robert has a strong interest in storms and teaches the fourth grade classes about them. He enjoys sharing his knowledge with others. His teachers feel it is a pleasure having a student like Robert in their classes.

Croghan Elementary: Andrew J. Earnhart, son of Lori Earnhart and Chris Earnhart, is a student in Linda Overstreet and Andre Pursell's class. Andy is an active member of Grace Community Church where he plays Upward Basketball. He is in Boy's Club and he makes as well as races slot cars. Andy plays drums in the Croghan band. According to his nomination form, Andy's grades, attendance, and class participation are superior. He is also interested in supporting others in schoolwork, band, and sports. Andy is an intelligent, hard-working and very personal young man. Andy says, " I like to win at everything, but if I can't, it's OK. It's really all about having fun."

Hayes Elementary: Nathan Baker, son of Michael and Jodi Baker, is a student in Mrs. Andrews and Ms. Wilson's class. Nathan plays saxophone in the sixth-grade band and serves on the safety patrol before and after school. He is looking forward to beginning Catechism soon at St. John's Lutheran Church. Nathan says he enjoys building things and playing football with a patient dad! He also enjoys taking on new chores around the house as his mom starts her new business. According to his teachers, Nathan is a responsible, hardworking student. He takes all assignments seriously. His cheerful, optimistic attitude can brighten the dreariest day. His zest for, and joy in life is refreshing and inspiring. He always speaks kindly of others and keeps a smile on his face. His teachers predict that Nathan will become an active role model and community leader as he is simply a thoughtful, service-oriented, sincere young gentleman! According to Nathan, " Do your best and you will always succeed!"

Lutz Elementary: Erica Ebert, daughter of Lisa and Steve Ebert, is a student in Mrs. Lytle and Mr. Macko's class. Erica enjoys reading and playing basketball. She also spends a lot of her time involved with the Sand Otter's Swim Club because she really likes swimming. Erica is an exemplary student. She is very dedicated and organized. Erica sets high standards for herself and then works to achieve them. This makes her a positive role model for her peers. She is always attentive in class and gives her best effort to every task. Erica is always respectful of the adults and students at Lutz. She makes her learning a priority and is a true pleasure having in class. Her daily smile and willing attitude make her a joy to see each day.

Otis Elementary: Karry Walls, daughter of Larry and Kim Walls, is a student in Tracie Dye and Lamar Baker's class. Karry is on Otis' student council and in the sixth-grade band. She also serves as an anchor for WCTV (Otis' morning newscast). One of Karry's talents is that she is an exceptional artist and has a true passion for art. Karry is very kind, generous, and helpful to her classmates. She is also respectful to her school's staff. According to her nomination form, a student like Karry enters a teacher's life very rarely. She is an exceptional young lady, a self-motivated student, and her work is second to none. Her teachers feel they have been honored to have her in their classes this year.

Stamm Elementary: Chelsea Myers, daughter of Paula Myers, is a student in Steve Boegli's class. Chelsea is very active in cheerleading and enjoys animals so much that some day she hopes to become a vet after college. She has been active in safety patrol and student council. Chelsea is a polite and very respectful young lady. She always has her work done and strives to improve herself every day. Chelsea gives a lot of her time to help make Stamm a better place. Her teachers feel it is such a pleasure having a student like Chelsea in their class.

Washington Elementary: Holly Fisher, daughter of Karen and Robert Fisher, is a student in Deb Acker's class. Holly enjoys swimming, jumping rope, and playing with her sisters. She also collects porcelain dolls. Holly is one of the hardest workers in her teacher's class. If she doesn't understand something, that does not stop her, according to her nomination form. Holly just keeps trying until she can do it. She willingly volunteers to help others and is always pleasant in class. Holly is a wonderful addition to any classroom. Holly stated, "I like math because it is becoming easier. I also like physical education and language arts because they are fun!"
