LINDSEY -- The Lindsey Tree Commission had a create a Christmas banner contest with Washington Elementary students.

Participating students were given four weeks to submit designs on an 8-by-10-inch sheet of paper. All entries were anonymous, and the judges chose two students from each grade level.

Trish Weinstein, a tree commission member, painted the winners' designs on a 3-by-5-foot canvas banner.

Tree Commission members had a reception at the fire station with the winning students and families, and their banners were hung along Main Street to enhance Lindsey's holiday decorations. All additional artwork that was submitted is on display in the front window of Naus Brothers' Hardware.
